Book Description (annotation)..

The subtitle; 'Confronting Religious Dysfunction in a Changing World' sums up the general theme of this book, which may be described as a courageous and insightful evaluation of the true ambitions of elitist religious institutions; the psychology of their members; and the resultant disturbing effects on modern society.

From the rear cover..

Had enough of religious bigotry and terrorism yet? Fed up with corrupt clergy? Wondering where all the craziness and hatred is coming from? Can't seem to get your mind around it all? Whatever indeed happened to 'Love Thy Neighbour'?

With the emphasis upon confronting, vs. continuing to pander to the destructive excesses of religion in society, this stirringly original book offers a frank, clinical and uncompromising critique of the modern religious mindset; the methods and motives of manipulative ecclesiastics; and the fundamental flaws of the politics and aims of authoritarian religious institutions

Dealing primarily with the major faith traditions, this book tackles the pernicious roots of modern fundamentalism covering topics such as the credulous mindset; religious bigotry; suicidal terrorism; clerical corruption; the sexual abuse of minors; and the ultimate fallacy of using indoctrination as a base for any genuine form of spirituality

Drawing upon years of research and personal experience, Dr. Manning has in this book managed to tentatively separate the 'true' from the false in religion, whilst still allowing for the unique sacredness of the individual spiritual quest
